

Ancestry, Society and Personal Identity
SOCI 421
Department of Sociology

Professor: Dr. Norine Verberg
E-mail: nverberg@stfx.ca
Phone/voice mail: 867-5077
Office location: Annex 111A

Classroom: Annex 113
Class time: Wednesdays, 3:45-6:30
Office hours: Tuesday, 1:30-3:30
Wednesdays, 9:00-10:00; Thursdays, 9:00-12:00

Calendar description

This course attempts to locate personal biography in the context of one's social history. Students' genealogies provide the starting point for explorations of family heritage, social history, and personal identity. Students will apply sociological ideas to help them understand how biography and history shapes personal and family histories. Three credits.

Course objectives

Through research and discussion, we contemplate the intersections of biography and history. The readings focus on autobiographical and storytelling methods and on how social location, ritual, and social memory frame and influence identity. We explore how social experiences such as class, gender, race, and ethnicity influence our sense of self and identity. Students construct a "sociological" family tree to guide their library research and write three autobiographical essays.

Required reading

Course-pack, and a few readings assigned for class discussion.

Evaluation exercises	Option A	Option B	Due date
1. A sociological family tree & reflection	10%	10%	Jan. 10 (17*)
2. Seminar leadership and participation	20%	10%
3. A 1500 word essay on class background	20%	15%	February 7
4. A 1500 word essay on a gender	20%	15%	March 7
5. A 4500 word essay incorporating 3 variables	30%	25%	April 4
6. Final examination ~ see below	---	30%

Final Examination

The final exam contains short-answer and essay questions on the readings in the reader. Option A provides students the choice of not writing the final exam. Eligibility for Option A is reserved for students who: 1) attended at least 10 full classes (and submit reading notes on classes missed), 2) completed all assigned work on time, 3) actively participated in seminars, and 4) maintained an average of 65 percent on course work.

Sociological Family Tree and Reflection

Due January 10; beginning of class

Each student will complete a sociological family tree and a 400-word reflection about doing this work. Worksheets will be distributed at the first class. Provide as much descriptive detail as you can; variations are expected. Further instructions will be given during class. The graded family tree must be attached to all essays. If, due to circumstances, you receive permission to submit the sociological family tree on January 17, see me to get started on your social class essay.*

Course essays

The course essays are auto-ethnographies (not diaries). They involve an analysis of how your ancestry and societal location influence your personal identity. The first essay is on your social class of origin. The second essay is on gender. The third essay is an integration of class, gender, and ‘race’ or ethnicity. Student may request – and make the case - to select a different third core identity variable (e.g., religion, citizenship/nationality) or linked core variables (e.g., French Catholic). Students will discuss the sociology of these variables – not your autobiography – during class. Your goal in all three papers is to use the sociology literature to write an auto-ethnographic account of each variable in the shaping of your identity. Further instructions for the papers and seminar discussion are provided in each class. Essays are due at the beginning of class. To be on time, you must attached the sociology family tree that I graded with each essay.

Class attendance

Class attendance is required. Understanding the essay requirements is contingent upon class participation. If you cannot attend class, you are recommended to find a more suitable course.

Seminar leadership

Students working in pairs will co-lead 1-2 seminars focused on a reading. The length of your seminar will be half of class (about 75 minutes). You will be assigned a reading and seminar partner one week prior to your seminars. You and your seminar partner will prepare a method to direct the class in a critical discussion of the assigned reading. Leadership of a discussion is preferred to a lecture; however, you are encouraged to introduce the reading and give attention to core concepts and the thesis and thesis development as you develop discussion of the reading.

Seminar preparation and participation on readings

There are two types of seminar work. Normally, the first 75 minutes involves a discussion of the course readings and the second 75 minutes involves a discussion of projects and project research. For the last class, each student will make a ‘reflection presentation’ lasting 15-20 minutes.

Discussion of the course readings

With regard to the course readings, each student should come prepared to participate. You are required to read the assigned article and prepare written notes. I expect each student to come to class with their reader and reading notes prepared on the assigned reading (i.e., identify and define key concepts, summarize the main argument, and prepare commentary, such as your thoughts on the objective, methods, premise, or conclusions of the study, and say why).

Discussion of research related to project work

Discussion after the break focuses on the projects, with some time spent on your research on your variables. For instance, students will be selected to introduce material from the readings they have found to be pertinent to their research (based on your library work). You are NOT asked to discuss your autobiographical analysis, but to explore the sociological aspect of the various identity variables that may inform an autobiographical analysis.

Failure to bring your reader and reading and project notes to class will influence your seminar grade and whether you will be eligible for “Option A”. The quality of your participation will influence your seminar grade. Please make every effort to involve classmates in the discussions.

Required Readings

1. Brookfield, Helen, Steven D. Brown, and Paula Reavey. 2008. "Vicarious and post-memory practices in adopting families: The re-production of the past through photography and narrative." Journal of Community & Applied Social Psychology 18: 474-491.
2. Callero, Peter L. 2003. "The Sociology of the Self." Annual Review of Sociology 29:115-133.
3. Clarke, George Elliot. 2011. "'Indigenous Blacks': An Irreconcilable Identity?" Pp. 399-406 in Cultivating Canada: Reconciliation through the Lens of Cultural Diversity (Volume III of the Speaking My Truth Series), edited by A. Mathur, J. Dewar, M. DeGagné. Ottawa: Aboriginal Healing Foundation Research Series.
4. Gillis. 2004. Gathering together: Remembering memory through ritual. Pp. 89-103 in A. Etzioni and J. Blom (Eds). We Are What We Celebrate. New York: New York Un. Press.
5. Gillis, John R. 2002. "Our imagined families: The myths and rituals we live by. Working Paper No. 7: The Emory Center for Myth and Rituals in American Life.
6. Goodsell, Todd L and Liann Seiter. 2011. Scrapbooking: Family capital and the construction of family discourse. Journal of Contemporary Ethnography 40(3):318-341.
7. Hollingsworth, Laura and Vappu Tyyska. 1988. "The Hidden Producers: Women's Household Production During the Great Depression." Critical Sociology 15(3):3-27.
8. Langellier, Kristin M. 2002. "Performing family stories, forming cultural identity: Franco American Mémère Stories." Communication Studies 53(1):56-73.
9. Loseke, Donileen. 2007. The study of identity as cultural, institutional, organizational, and personal narratives: Theoretical and empirical integrations. The Sociological Quarterly 48:661-688.
10. Misztal, Barbara. 2003. "Theorizing Remembering." Pp. 50-74 in Theories of Social Remembering. Maidenhead: Open University Press.
11. Smart, Carol. 2011. Families, Secrets and Memories. Sociology 45(4):539-553.
12. Tye, Diane. 2010. "A Life in Recipes." Pp 3-43 in Baking as Biography: A Life Story in Recipes. Montreal & Kingston: McGill-Queen's University Press.
13. Zerubavel, Eviatar. 1996. "Social memories: Steps to a Sociology of the past." Qualitative Sociology 19(3): 283-299.
14. Zussman, Robert. 2006. "Picturing the self: my mother's family photo albums." Contexts 5(4): 28-34.

Date	Reading Schedule*: SOCI421	Seminar Leader	Seminar Leader
	Loseke ~ all classes
January 3	Intro/ Stories We Tell	Dr. Verberg	Dr. Verberg
January 10	Smart
January 17	Gillis 2002
January 24	Gillis 2004 Goodsell & Seiter
January 31	Brookfield et al. Zussman
February 7	Tye	Dr. Verberg	Class paper due*
February 14	Langellier
Feb. 19-23	Winter Recess: no classes
February 28	Hollingsworth & Tyyska
March 7	Loseke & Mitzal	Dr. Verberg	Gender paper due*
March 14	Clarke
March 21	Callero
March 28	Zerubavel
April 4	Reflection presentations	Every one	Final paper due*
	* the order may be altered		* beginning of class