Introduction to Sociology II

Instructor:

Office Hours:

In this course, we will expand on the key thinkers, concepts, and subfields of sociology that you explored in SOC 101 through the context of comedy.

Looking at how comedy reveals the taken-for-granted aspects of our social lives—from issues of class, gender, and race, to culture, inequality, and the construction of knowledge—we will pay particular attention to the ways in which comedy acts as a form of social critique, speaking truth to power.

We will also explore the implications of power relations in our society, and the ways in which sociology can be a valuable tool for orienting us toward an alternative future, or a sense that things could be different.

Course Objectives & Textbook

By the end of this course, you should have:

- A broad grasp of the history of sociological thinking
- A general knowledge of sociological concepts and theories
- A critical view of the meaning and nature of power and power relations
- An understanding of some of the major issues facing contemporary global society

I truly believe that this course is relevant to your lives. If, at any time during this course, you feel that what we're learning isn't useful, I urge you to ask me: "Why should I give a damn?"

I'll gladly take time to explain why I believe what we're learning is important for you to know. And if I can't explain why, I'll amend that section of the course.

Requirements

Attendance is absolutely vital to this course, and will likely be a necessary part of getting a good grade. In return for attending, I promise to make the course interesting, and worthwhile. If you are unable to attend regularly, please talk to me about possible accommodations.

The Comedy Comment asks you to consider whether humour has any place in sociology. Your response should be one to two pages long. Due January 21

Quizzes are based off of the readings for their relevant class. They will take the form of a multiple-choice test available on Moodle.

The Comedy Paper will evaluate your ability to reflect on the relationship between comedy and social critique. You will choose one comedy clip, and write four to six pages about how that clip relates to a taken-for-granted aspect of contemporary life. Due February 1

The Film Review will assess your ability to review and critique a body of work using course materials and concepts. We will watch the film, The Yes Men Fix the World, and you will produce a four to six page critical review. More details will be provided on Moodle. March 4

The Final Paper will assess your understanding of the course material from the entire term. In an eight to ten page paper, you will be asked to consider the following questions: (1) Why is the study of power important?; (2) How can the sociological imagination be utilized to do so? Due April 8

Additional Information

COVID-19

The 2020–2021 academic year is taking place during an exceptional period of human history. As the COVID-19 pandemic is still ongoing, we may have to adjust the course assessment plan and/or delivery method with little or no notice. You may also have to stay home from class for various reasons related to COVID-19 (such as simply feeling ill). If this happens to you, please contact me so that we can discuss an alternative to your attendance grade for that class. Lastly, it is important that you take care of yourself by getting adequate amounts of sleep, and by taking appropriate mental health breaks. The university website on COVID-19 provides more information and links (<https://www.stfx.ca/coronavirus>).

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

As this course involves the production of written work, you should familiarize yourself with the standards for proper referencing of all cited materials, such as books, journal articles, newspaper articles, websites, and so on. Students that attempt to pass off someone else's work as their own (i.e., plagiarism) will be dealt with through the university policy on academic honesty. Please ensure that you fully understand this policy (see section 3.8 of the academic calendar, found at: <https://www2.mystfx.ca/registrars-office/academic-calendars>). Resources for avoiding plagiarism can be found on the library website (<https://www2.mystfx.ca/library/plagiarism>).

Accommodations

If you have an injury, develop an illness, or encounter a personal crisis that will impact your progress in this course, please email me as soon as you are able. This will ensure that we find a way for you to complete the course. The Health and Counselling Centre is another resource available to you (<http://www2.mystfx.ca/health-and-counselling/>).

If you have any disabilities that require an accommodation in teaching style or evaluation, please speak to me as soon as possible so we can implement those accommodations. You may also want to contact the Tramble Centre for Accessible Learning (<https://www2.mystfx.ca/accessible-learning/tramble-centre-accessible-learning>).
