(It will be necessary to first learn how to establish heading styles. See below.)

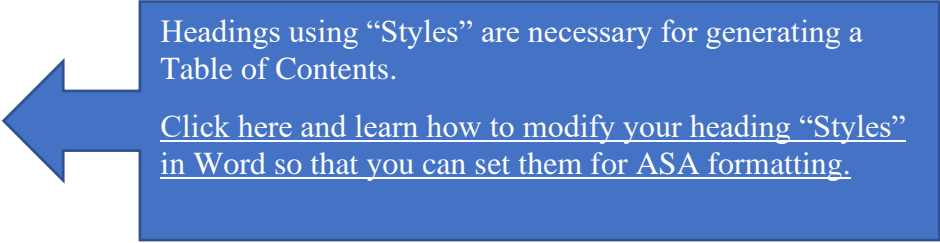

The Table of Contents is written on a separate page. You will therefore need to insert a “page break” here.

Notice the title of your essay is repeated at the top of the first page. Different journals (or professors) may have specific requirements regarding paragraph indentation. Do not add a subheading (e.g., INTRODUCTION), instead, begin writing the essay here. If your essay requires the addition of sections and subsections, the headings will be added in the following formats.

LEVEL 1 HEADING

Headings using “Styles” are necessary for generating a Table of Contents.

Click here and learn how to modify your heading “Styles” in Word so that you can set them for ASA formatting.

Notice that Level 1 Heading contains all caps and is left-justified. The text under this heading begins in a new paragraph. You may even have to have further levels of subsections.

Level 2 Heading

Notice that the Level 2 Heading has capital letters for all words except articles, prepositions and conjunctions. It is also left-justified. The text under this heading will begin in a new paragraph.

Level 3 headings. Notice that the Level 3 Heading has lowercase letters for all words except the first word and names. It is also italicized and indented. Notice, too, that this heading is followed by a period and that the paragraph continues immediately after it.

CONCLUSION

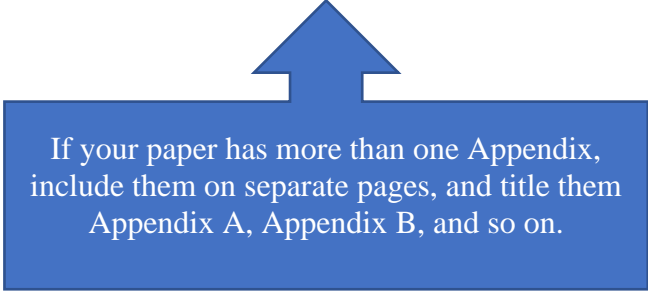

Here is where you will write your conclusion.

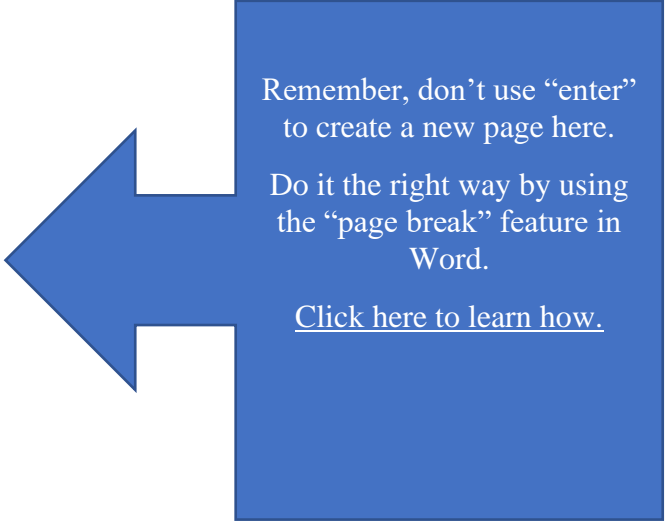

If you are including an Appendix, remember to add a page break here.

APPENDIX

Here is where you will add your appendix.

If your paper has more than one Appendix, include them on separate pages, and title them Appendix A, Appendix B, and so on.

Remember, don't use "enter" to create a new page here.

Do it the right way by using the "page break" feature in Word.
